Churchill Downs Incorporated To Acquire Youbet.com., Inc.

Churchill Downs Incorporated (NASDAQ: CHDN) ("CDI") and Youbet.com, Inc. (NASDAQ: UBET) ("Youbet") announced today they have entered into a definitive merger agreement under which CDI would acquire all of the outstanding shares of Youbet in a transaction valued at approximately $126.8 million based on the Tues. Nov. 10, 2009, closing price of CDI common stock. Under the terms of the transaction, Youbet shareholders would receive a fixed ratio of 0.0598 shares of CDI common stock plus $0.97 in cash for each share of Youbet common stock they own, subject to possible future adjustment to the exchange ratio in very limited circumstances to increase the cash consideration and correspondingly decrease the stock consideration, in order to ensure that the transaction does not require CDI to issue more than 19.6% of its outstanding common stock prior to the transaction. After the close of the transaction, Youbet.com shareholders are expected to own approximately 16% of CDI. Based on the closing price of CDI common stock on Tues. Nov. 10, 2009, the transaction represents a per-share value of Youbet common stock of approximately $2.84, and an implied premium of 28% for Youbet shareholders over the closing price of Youbet common stock on Tues. Nov. 10, 2009. This transaction is expected to qualify as tax-deferred under Section 368 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Youbet is recognized as a leading innovator in the advanced deposit wagering ("ADW") channel, delivering horse racing online to consumers in the U.S. Youbet has introduced such breakthrough features such as its WagerPadPro™ wagering interface, MyROI, a best-in-class analytic tool, and the recently launched beta version of WhoDoYouLike.com, a new social media website focused on real-time aggregation of fans' thoughts and opinions on horse racing. Youbet is also the exclusive provider of horse racing content to CBSSports.com and ESPN.com. Youbet's United Tote subsidiary is a leading supplier of totalizator systems, equipment and technology that process wagers and payouts and is a provider of pari-mutuel tote services to racing operations inside and outside the United States including such leading racetracks as Aqueduct, Belmont, Churchill Downs, Keeneland, and Saratoga. Youbet reported handle of $438 million and revenue of $85.8 million in 2008, and reported $374 million in handle and $70.8 million in revenue through the first nine months of 2009.

We believe this transaction will bring significant value and opportunity to both the customers of the combined business and to CDI shareholders and Youbet shareholders who will become CDI shareholders due to:

- Anticipated revenue opportunities,
- Cost reduction synergies,
- An enhanced capability to pursue other online business opportunities,
- Secure access to a stable, established tote system, and
- A greater ability to develop and introduce new technology-enabled features and services that ADW customers want, and that can attract new customers to racing.

According to recent statistics, less than 14% of all wagering on U.S. Thoroughbred racing is estimated to be placed online. We believe, however, that this percentage will continue to grow, consistent with recent trends toward online transactions in other consumer industries. In fact, the level of ADW wagering activity has already been increased significantly in recent years, while overall wagering activity has been relatively flat and, in recent years, down. If these recent trends continue as anticipated, we believe the combined business will be well positioned to compete for additional handle and revenue opportunities.

A projected $10 million in annualized cost savings have been identified that can be realized by combining the two companies. These cost synergies fall into three categories: elimination of the duplicate costs of operating two public companies; elimination of duplicate sales, general and administrative costs; and elimination of the duplicate costs of developing and operating two ADW technology stacks and websites. The first $5 million in annualized cost reduction is expected to be realized within the first few months following closing of this transaction, and the second $5 million by the end of the first 12 months following closing. During the first 12 months following closing, we expect these cost reductions will be reduced by approximately $7 million resulting from transaction fees, restructuring charges and asset impairment charges, the precise amounts and timing of which cannot be predicted at this time.

We believe that the resources of the combined business will enable it to pursue other online business opportunities beyond pari-mutuel wagering, should such opportunities develop. We also believe this transaction has significant benefits for CDI, by enabling it to acquire and maintain a stable, established tote system, which is recognized as the industry's leading system. Concerns about the financial viability and stability of tote system providers and the need to improve the integrity of tote system wagering are well established. By acquiring United Tote, CDI hopes to be able to directly address those problems and utilize the United Tote technology to improve tote system stability, performance and integrity.

Finally, the combined business should be able to develop and introduce innovative new technology-enabled features and services that ADW customers want and that can bring new customers to racing. The combined business would be a publicly-traded, U.S.-licensed, U.S.- operated and U.S.-owned ADW operator backed by the financial resources of CDI. As the ADW channel grows, we believe the combined business will be able to offer customers a superior level of trust, confidence and service delivering an unparalleled customer experience.

The merger, which has been unanimously approved by the Board of Directors of both companies, is conditioned upon, among other things, the approval of Youbet's shareholders, the receipt of required regulatory approvals, and other customary closing conditions. Subject to the satisfaction of these conditions, the transaction is expected to close in the first or second quarter of 2010. In connection with the merger agreement, certain shareholders of Youbet and each of the directors of Youbet have entered into voting agreements with CDI under which they have agreed to vote their shares, which collectively represents approximately 24% of Youbet's outstanding shares, in favor of the merger. Upon completion of the transaction, Michael Brodsky, Youbet's Executive Chairman, will join CDI's Board of Directors and its Executive and Strategy Committees.

Churchill President and Chief Executive Officer Robert L. Evans said, "We believe this combination should enable us to accelerate the development of new technology-enabled features and services that horse racing customers who wager via the ADW channel want, and that can attract new customers to racing. While we expect to make many exciting improvements for customers, our existing TwinSpires.com customers will be able to continue to access their accounts and make wagers, deposits and withdrawals in the same manner they do today." Evans continued, "We believe that the anticipated additional growth in our ADW channel handle and revenue, coupled with the expected cost synergies, make this transaction a good way to deliver additional value to CDI and Youbet shareholders."

Youbet President and Chief Executive Officer David Goldberg said: "We are excited about what this opportunity to combine Youbet with CDI will mean for Youbet customers, shareholders and employees. We have worked hard to develop and deploy innovative products and services and have introduced creative online marketing tools to attract new customers to racing. Youbet's customers will be able to continue to access their accounts and make wagers, deposits and withdrawals as they do today. We believe these capabilities will complement CDI's strong customer relationship with core racing fans. Youbet shareholders are receiving a significant premium over the current trading price for their shares and, through their ownership of CDI shares, the opportunity to participate in the potential upside of the combined company."

"We have been very impressed by the quality, performance and dedication of Youbet employees." concluded Evans, "Immediately upon the closing of this transaction we will share our plans for the combined business with both Youbet and CDI employees. Until the transaction has closed we must continue to operate both companies in a completely independent manner."
